CALL FOR PAPERS

Open Topic

The next open-topic issue of Colombia Internacional is now accepting submissions of original research manuscripts from scholars whose work advances national and international debate on past or contemporary political phenomena. Contributions should engage with questions in political science or international relations and employ appropriate methodological approaches. The journal welcomes submissions regardless of theoretical orientation within political science or international relations and does not privilege any particular family of research methods. Manuscripts may be submitted in Spanish, English, or Portuguese.

The journal's readership includes both specialists and the wider public. It publishes work that contributes to the production of new knowledge, strengthens academic networks, and serves as a resource for researchers, faculty, and students, while also fostering dialogue at the local and regional levels.

Manuscripts will be accepted between 20 August and 30 September 2026. To submit a manuscript, authors must first register and log in through the journal's online submission system: <https://revistas.uniandes.edu.co/index.php/colombia-int/login>

To be considered for review, manuscripts must comply fully with the submission guidelines established by Colombia Internacional, which are available at: <https://revistas.uniandes.edu.co/index.php/colombia-int/article-prep>. Manuscripts that fail to meet the journal's editorial requirements will not be reviewed by the editorial team. In addition, submissions must not be under review elsewhere or subject to any editorial commitment with another publication.

Given the number of manuscripts submitted in response to each call for papers, Colombia Internacional limits publication to one article per author within any two-year period. Once submissions have closed, the editorial committee conducts an initial screening to assess each manuscript's suitability for the journal and to ensure full compliance with the author guidelines and editorial policies. Manuscripts that pass this stage are then sent to external reviewers.

CALL FOR PAPERS

Authors are required to disclose any use of artificial intelligence in the preparation of their manuscripts in order to promote the ethical use of these technologies. This includes the use of language-processing tools to generate text or images (including the translation of sources or of the authors' own manuscript), to collect or analyse data or other materials, or to extract information or draw conclusions from them. A complete description of how these tools were used must be included in the manuscript, as follows:

- Text generation: disclose this use in a separate section or in a footnote.
- Data collection or analysis: describe how the tools were used in the methodology section.
- Visual content generation (illustrations, graphs, tables, etc.): include the disclosure in a note accompanying the relevant figure or graphic.

Generative AI tools may not be listed as authors of manuscripts submitted for publication. Authors must also ensure that any third-party material used or incorporated into AI-generated output is properly acknowledged or used with the appropriate permission. Responsibility for the use of artificial intelligence rests entirely with the author, who is strongly encouraged to review all submitted manuscripts carefully to identify and correct any errors or inconsistencies introduced by these tools.
